

Consultations or Medical Examinations if you have a Fever or Other Symptoms

For people who have a fever or other symptoms

People who have a fever or other symptoms should first contact their family physician or their closest medical institution. If you are not sure about which medical institution to contact, first contact an Examination/Consultation Center.

Follow the medical institution's instructions when going for an examination. Wear a mask, wash your hands, and follow proper etiquette when coughing (cough or sneeze in a mask, sleeve, tissue, or handkerchief, covering your nose and mouth).

Examination/Consultation Centers

At night and weekends, a message will redirect you to the emergency phone number.

For those coming into Japan from areas with prevalent infections

Those who have spent time in an area with prevalent infections during the 14 days before entering Japan must report to a quarantine inspector. Follow the inspector's instructions.

For those who struggle with Japanese

Foreign persons may contact the Toyama Prefecture Foreign Resident Support Center (open from 9:00 to 17:00 on weekdays) and use the Triophone (3-way interpretation system) to interpret their call to a medical institution.
